WHAT WE STORE IN COOKIE FILES

Reporting and analytics cookies; Google Analytics cookies

Google Analytics is an online application from Google that uses cookies which help us to analyse activity on our website. This means we can make changes to our website to improve your experience when using the website. This app is commonly used across the internet and all data is anonymous, thus no data is collected that could be identified as yours.

We use Google Optimize to improve the content and your experience on our website. We can test and compare our visitors 'behaviour' on our website and see which pages they prefer. To do this Google Optimize sets a cookie on the page to identify which user has seen which version of the page.

Find out more about Google Analytics cookies at : <https://support.google.com/analytics>

Social media advertising

We use cookies from Facebook to track what actions take place on our website, for example, whether someone signs up for an event. This helps us analyse & monitor how our Facebook advertising campaigns are performing.

We can also use these cookies to build custom audiences to advertise to on Facebook. Find out more about Facebook interest-based advertising and how to opt out can be found at <https://www.facebook.com/help/>

Third-party cookies

Other websites may use cookies while you browse our website, usually if you're logged into your accounts with them. How these cookies work is outlined in the terms and conditions or privacy policy for each website.

Find out more about how Facebook uses cookies : <https://www.facebook.com/about/privacy>

We currently collect information about your computer in order to tailor the web pages we provide to you. This information is collected from your computer regardless of whether or not you register with us and is not personal to you. This includes the following:

- operating system (eg Microsoft Windows 7)
- browser software (eg Google Chrome)
- your browser's custom settings (eg the presence of a Macromedia Flash plug-in)
- your IP address (the unique Internet network address of your machine)
- your geographic location (or that of your Internet service provider)
- access times (the time spent on a Right Click Ltd website)
- referring domain (the website you were browsing prior to your visit to a Right Click Ltd website).

DISCLAIMER

We encourage you to read the privacy policy of any websites listed on our website that you choose to visit so you may understand what information is collected from you and for what purpose. Right Click Ltd cannot be held responsible for the policies of any third party website listed on our website and you access these websites at your own risk.
